PREFACE

One of the frustrations of Egyptology is the time-consuming search for evidence. To be sure, we possess many basic reference works which make this search easier, but many more are needed. The study of the social and political structure of the Middle Kingdom, for example, depends heavily on administrative titles, a situation clearly illustrated by the number of studies on individual titles which have appeared in the literature. Yet, those who wish to examine this subject must spend countless hours with museum catalogues, excavation reports and innumerable studies of inscribed objects in order to assemble adequate material. That there is a wealth of material is amply shown by Martin's indispensable collection of Middle Kingdom scarabs with titles and the numerous museum collections of private stelae of the period.

The present work grew out of my own endless search for individual titles and the realization that my colleagues faced the same problem. I readily admit that the material assembled here is incomplete, based as it is on the limited research facilities available to me in Beirut. There are Middle Kingdom monuments I have not seen and there are discussions of titles and individual words which have been unintentionally omitted. But no reference work is ever finished and, while I am aware of its imperfections, I hope that in spite of them this Index will prove to be of some use.

I would like to express my appreciation to the following: to the University Publications Committee of the American University of Beirut for accepting this volume for publication; to the Research Committee of the Faculty of Arts and Sciences of the same institution for granting funds to obtain material not available in Beirut; to Mr. David Warburton for his perserverance in collecting this material in Basel; to Prof. Harry S. Smith of University College London for his warm encouragement. My wife, to whom this volume is dedicated, deserves special thanks for her constant interest in my work and for creating an oasis of calm in the desert of chaos that is present-day Lebanon. Without her strength and companionship, this and other works would not have been written.

INTRODUCTION

The titles collected in this index belong primarily to the Middle Kingdom from the reunification in the Eleventh Dynasty to the end of the Thirteenth. Some references are given which may fall before this period, but it is often difficult to draw the line. For example, in using the material from Dunham's publication of the stelae from Naga ed-Deir, I have followed Schenkel's groupings, thus omitting the earlier of these stelae.<sup>1</sup> I have included the many stelae in Cairo dated "Altes-Mittleres Reich" by Borchardt<sup>2</sup> even though some of these may not fall within the period of the Eleventh Dynasty. The choice of what to include or omit has thus sometimes been a subjective one.

This subjectivity is also apparent in determining what is and what is not a title. The distinction between titles and epithets is often very difficult to determine and I have relied on my own judgement in such cases. For example, I consider b3k n pr d.t to be a title, b3k nsw to be an epithet; the former is included, the latter is not. Helck feels that rj nsw (m3<sup>C</sup>) was an active title in the Middle Kingdom, though the one context he quotes to support this view is ambiguous.<sup>3</sup> I believe this to be an honorific epithet in Middle Kingdom times, hence it is omitted here. As a general rule, I have tended to retain questionable examples rather than omit them.

Photographs and facsimiles of the monuments concerned have been consulted wherever possible. In those cases where photographs or facsimiles were not available, I have had to rely on the publication. Such instances are fortunately few.<sup>4</sup>

Part One is the Index proper. The individual entries give the Egyptian spelling, transliteration and translation, references to where the title appears and references to where it is discussed. Every effort has been made to eliminate duplicate references to the same object in different publications.

Part Two is a glossary of the individual words used in titles with a discussion of their meaning and use where this seemed useful.

The most difficult aspect of this project has been adequate and meaningful translation. It is often the case that words used in titles have several meanings or the sense is vague or unknown. For many titles, we know little or nothing about the actual duties and functions they imply. Hence, a translation may be vague due to doubt about the meaning of one or more of the component terms or because it is impossible to define functions. Most of the references recorded are to stelae, tombs, and the like, where titles are simply mentioned. There are precious few contexts which tell us what a given official actually did.

I thus expect that my colleagues will disagree with many of the translations offered here. Where justification is needed, this will be found in the notes to individual words in Part Two. Admittedly, there is much that is controversial. I have, for example, adopted Lorton's rendering of ip.t-nsw as "royal counting-house," instead of the usual "royal harem," since I am presently convinced that the latter is incorrect. I am not fully persuaded that Lorton's rendering fits all cases, but have chosen it as the better alternative.<sup>5</sup> Similar problems arise in other cases. Therefore, I present my translations more as a convenience than as my own final judgement. Justification for many translations offered here must await publication of more detailed studies.

One decision was made with great reluctance, to omit personal names. These would, of course, have been of help in locating monuments belonging to the same individual and I realize that this omission lessens the value of this work. However, including the personal names would literally have doubled the bulk of the references, resulting in a much larger volume. Printing costs are such that the decision in favour of the smaller size was inevitable.

NOTES TO INTRODUCTION

1. Dunham, Naga-ed-Dêr Stelae of the First Intermediate Period (Oxford, 1937); Schenkel, Frühmittelägyptische Studien (Bonn, 1962), pp. 95 ff.
2. Borchardt, Denkmäler des Alten Reiches (ausser den Statuen). Vol. 2 (Cairo, 1964), passim.
3. Helck, Verwaltung, pp. 279 f. He quotes a passage from HT II, 8, 5 (BM 574) in which Hnty-m-smy.t states: "I became a True King's Acquaintance, one whose actions his majesty approved, who placed the nobles at their stations." Helck sees in this a definition of the title as indicating an official "die für die Innehaltung des Zeremoniells verantwortlich waren." But there is nothing which grammatically connects "True King's Acquaintance" with "who placed the nobles."

In the light of the very large number of rh nsw's in Middle Kingdom times, I think it much more likely that any favoured person might be granted the privilege of being a "King's Acquaintance," but that no actual responsibilities were involved. Both important and minor officials could be a rh nsw and this is often the sole epithet for unimportant people with no titles at all. I think all this points to rh nsw being purely honourific. Hnty-m-smy.t may well have been responsible for the placing of his colleagues at palace ceremonies, but this was in his capacity as a high official, not because he was a "King's Acquaintance."

4. For example, Lange and Schäfer, Grab- und Denkstein des Mittleren Reichs. 4 vols. (Berlin, 1902-15), is available to me only on microfilm so that the photographs are sometimes too small or indistinct to check details of individual signs. With regard to Gayet, Stèles de la XIIe dynastie (Paris, 1886), which is full of errors, I have consulted as many photographs in other publications as possible, but have not been entirely successful.

5. Lorton, JARCE 11 (1974), 98 ff. This phrase is fully discussed in my work on feminine titles of the Middle Kingdom now in preparation (Chap. 5).

NOTE: TRANSLITERATION OF THE GENITIVE PARTICLE

There seems to be no overall consistency in the spelling of the genitive particle in Middle Kingdom titles. Some titles such as imy-r s.t, imy-r <sup>c</sup>hnw.ty and imy-r w<sup>c</sup>r.t are inevitably followed by the masculine n, not the expected feminine nt. On the other hand, the title imy-r hmw-ntr is sometimes followed by the singular n, sometimes by the plural nw. I have thus generally transliterated the genitive particle according to what is actually written, not according to the rules of modern grammatical theory.

PART ONE
INDEX OF TITLES

The order in which the titles are given is strictly alphabetical, including such adjectives as <sup>c</sup>3, wr, nb, etc. Prepositions are not considered. Compound words are treated as single terms. Note especially that feminine titles follow their masculine counterparts with all their variants, e.g., titles beginning with imy.t-r (Nos. 423-24) follow all titles beginning with imy-r (Nos. 28-422).

In several cases, the reading of titles given here is different from that of other authors; the difference has been noted only in exceptional cases. With titles of the type "X of Y," where the genitive is not written, these may in some cases be two separate titles, e.g., hry-pr whmw, "Majordomo of the Herald," (No. 982), could be "Majordomo, Herald."

The fullest attested form of the Egyptian spelling is given; variant spellings are added usually only when these are not well known or where unusual signs are involved.

The references are to publications rather than museum numbers to facilitate locating them. References such as "Martin, passim," are given where there are more than five examples in a publication which has its own title index. All references are given to a publication where no such index exists.

Following the references to the publications where a title appears, where applicable there are cross-references to other titles in which it is a component.

Under "Disc." are references to discussions of a given title and such remarks as were thought useful.

The group  and its variants has two readings verified by  phonetic spellings: (1) 3tw as shown by Old Kingdom examples (e.g., Junker, Giza V, fig. 44) and Coptite Nome, fig. 15; (2) w<sup>c</sup>rtw as shown by full spellings of w<sup>c</sup>r.t, "district," in Urk. I, 103, 1, and Siut IV, 11. In the present work, w<sup>c</sup>rtw is used when this is an official attached to one of the administrative districts of Egypt or to a guild of workmen; cf. Verwaltung, p. 241; ZAS 70, 83; JNES 12, 31. The reading 3tw is used in the present work when this functionary is attached to an official of some kind, even when groups of officials are involved (nos. 3, 8, 12) where one could defend the sense "Administrator."

NIR nos. 68, 69
Disc.: This title seems to be related to iry s3 ikwy.w
(no. 540), also from the Wadi Hammamat. As Goyon notes (NIR, p. 91), the names of no. 540 are the same or similar to those of the present group. Though the two groups of graffiti are separated by more than a quarter century, the same men may be involved. The element mr is totally obscure; it appears only here in Middle Kingdom titles.
Could this be an erroneous attempt at engraving no. 329?

Wb. IV, 98, 19, gives this as the title "Gaufürst" which

p. 81. However, this is doubtful for the Middle Kingdom.
It appears only once, in the plural: "I was honoured more than the rulers of (other) nomes" (Urk. VII, 2, 11) which is merely a descriptive phrase referring collectively to Sarenput's fellow Nomarchs.

Disc.: The sense of this title is still debated; cf. ZAS 38, 54, and P. Reisner, p. 42. In Middle Kingdom times, it may have been a designation of rank. Officials with this title are often very minor and on the modest stela FM 31679 there are no less than eight s3b's. When attached to another title it must be a ranking title and CDME, p. 209, "Senior," is adopted in the following entries. It is possible that in some or all of these, s3b is a separate title.

FBI, pp. 41, 47, pl. 70, 2. See nos. 346, 839, 1321.
Disc.: With very few exceptions, this is not a regular title in the Middle Kingdom, but rather a general designation for any high official. It is most often found in the plural, e.g.: "the council of srw,"; "srw of the land"; "a courtier among the srw"; etc. In the singular, sr is usually accompanied by a qualifying phrase as in the entries which follow. These may all be epithets (an official who...) rather than titles with actual responsibilities. The singular sr rarely appears alone and even here it is apparently a general term, not a specific title: "I am the son of an important sr of the Thinite Nome" (Sethe, Les., p. 73, 9); "If anyone petitions a sr or a hearer of decrees..." (Stèle jur. 7-8). On the specialized use of this title at Buhen, see FBI, p. 78.

CG 1629, 1654; SCF I, p. 150; Walters no. 32;

Disc.: Throughout the present work, the signs  and are read sd3w.t unless phonetic complements require htm;
see nos. 1785-86a and Part Two, sub htm(.t). There is no distinction in the use of these signs which are used inter-changably; for general discussions, cf. Coptite Nome, App.
B, and WZKM 54, 177 ff. The problem is best seen in the title , uniformly written without a -t in Middle Egyptian titles, usually transcribed sd3w.ty, but sometimes sd3w or htmw. I follow Fischer's argument, Coptite Nome, pp. 128 f., that the plural ending -tiw fits better with sd3w.t (see no. 367). To this may be added the evidence of the feminine form which shows two t's, hence, sd3w.tyt (no. 1500). These are all based on the noun (phonetically spelled) sd3y.t/sd3w.t, "seal" (CDME, p.
258). See also the feminine noun sd3w.t, "treasury, treasure," in Part Two, sub sd3w.t. Sd3w.ty is often translated "treasurer" which might be admissible in some instances, though the extensive use of the titles in question implies that it is best to use the more general term "sealer." When used in a narrative context, sd3w.ty may sometimes best be rendered simply as "official," as in Hatnub Gr. no. 28, etc. Sd3w.ty and related titles are discussed at length in OOE, pp. 165 ff.

PART TWO
GLOSSARY

This Glossary contains references to all words and phrases, divine names and place-names used in Middle Kingdom titles. Royal names are listed separately at the end. References are to the numbers of the titles listed in Part One. Single-word titles and references to where they are found in other titles may be found in the appropriate place in Part One.

pyramid of Amenemhat I; JEA 52, 176

3h s.wt, Most Glorious of Places, 1077. Name of the pyramid of Mentuhotep II; JEA 52, 176. Géog. II, p. 68, says this is the funerary temple.

3hy.t, still-room(?), 134, 453, 562, 964, 978. For this sense, cf. Ag. Stud., p. 1. The alternative meaning, "royal tomb," seems unlikely as the officials involved are minor. OOE, p. 237, renders "palace slaughter-house," but does not justify this meaning.

i3.t, office, function, 33, 1046-48, 1134

i3.tyw, officials, 1135

i3bt.t, the east, eastern, 227, 340, 678

ip.t, census, 35, 451

ip.t nsw, royal counting-house, 36-38, 454, 978a (Addendum), 1230, 1349, 1569. JARCE 11, 98. This term may have several meanings; Fem. Titles, Chap. 5 ip(3)-nsw, royal bureau, 574. In spite of the abbreviated spelling, this must be the same word as Wb. I, 68, 15, found only on Louvre C 1; cf. Les. Erl., p. 130.

'Ipw, Akhmîm, 1217. Géog. II, p. 109; AEO II, p. 41*

im3.t, gynaeceum, women's quarters in a house, 1350. Or. 29, 185 imy-<sup>c</sup>h, he who is in the palace (= the king), 1124. Königtum, p. 26

imy-ḥ3.t, what is in front, 1235 imy.wt pr, household goods, 39. This meaning fits better than the legal sense on which see Lex. Ag. III, 141 ff. It is possible that HT IV, 40, gives the correct reading in the masculine, hence "people of the house, temple servants"; cf. AL I, p. 25.

imy.wt h3.t, ancestors, 455

'Imn, Amon, 100, 246, 252, 434, 570f, 641, 788, 825, 898, 961, Sethe, Amun, p. 111.

'Imnw, unknown place, 40, 1236. IS II, p. 18. This may simply be a "hidden place," a district of Sinai; a parallel is imn.t in Urk. IV, 384,6, and AL I, 29.

imn.tyw, westerners, 514

imnt.t, the west, western, 227, 341

ini, to bring, 1049

inb.t, fortress, guard-house, 743, 1256. Though 1256 is masculine, both examples are probably the inb.t discussed in JEA 49, 61; CdE No. 82, 226; Or. 34, 431, n. 3.

'Inpw, Anubis, 138, 261, 392, 642, 647, 899, 900, 923, 1130, 1205, 1484

meaning is intended in titles.

<sup>c</sup>.t mw, water-pantry, 758

<sup>c</sup>.t nmt.t, pantry for nmt.t-fish, 513. Nmt.t is otherwise unknown, but cf. Wb. II, 271, 21, nmt.t, a hostile being, spelled with a fish-determinative.

- <sup>c</sup>.t rmw, fish-pantry, 315
- <sup>c</sup>.t ḥ3m, catch-pantry, 759. Undoubtedly the room to which freshly caught fish were brought for sorting, then sent on to other rooms; cf. the two preceding entries.

- <sup>c</sup>.t ḥnk.t, kitchen, 75, 458, 486, 510, 565, 979, 1184, 1356, 1571. On this sense, see KKS. DOE, passim, regularly confuses this with ḥnky.t, linen.
- <sup>c</sup>.t ḥnw, workshop, 812a. In the Old Kingdom, at least, there was a ḥnw on private estates. Note "every craftsman of the ḥnw (Gebrawi I, pl. 13) and two "carpenters of the ḥnw" working on a large chest (ibid., pl. 14).

- <sup>c</sup>y.t, sanctuary, 508. This must be the same word as Wb. I, 166, 11 (late refs. only), unless both examples of no. 508 are errors for ry.t, Wb. I, 209, 6.
- <sup>c</sup>w.t, small quadrupeds, 60-61, 794
- <sup>c</sup>bw, horned cattle, 62-64

<sup>c</sup>n.ty, Anty, 598. On the alternate reading Nm.ty, see Lex. Ag. I, 319, n. 2. To the evidence from personal names quoted there can probably be added NIR no. 68. The spelling of no. 598 is obscure.

<sup>c</sup>nh-S.n-Wsr.t, Senusert Lives, 1507. Name of the pyramid town of Senusert II at Lahun; Géog. II, p. 209.

wrr.t, red crown, 907

wrḥ.t, ointment, 1145. Both examples are abbreviated so reading is uncertain. On this term, see Wortforschung V, p. 36.

wršw, watcher, 5, 466, 737. Since Ḥtpi of AIB I, 192 (no. 466) was a wnw.ty, "astronomer," as well as an iry-<sup>c</sup>.t n wršw, the wršw may be the day-time equivalent, one who watches the day-light hours, though this is normally wršy. Wb. I, 336, 6, lists iry-<sup>c</sup>.t n wršw as a separate entry and IS II, p. 111 translates "Petty official of the wrš," evidently intending to indicate a place. While an iry-<sup>c</sup>.t was usually associated with a place, he was sometimes attached to individuals which seems to be the case here. I have thus rendered "watcher (of day-light hours)" though some specific place ("guard-room"?) may be involved.

mrw, servants, 199. SASAE 18, 25: mr(t). Wb. II, 96, 15, CDME, p. 111, etc., suggest that BH I, pl. 29 means "weavers" because the imy-r mrw is shown directing a group of weavers. But this is the only context where this title is clearly associated with weaving and it may be that the term mrw in this case indicates "servants" whose specific task is weaving. It is thus questionable that a word mrw, "weavers," exists, this function normally being expressed by sht.

hw.t It is often difficult to translate titles containing hw.t since it has such a wide variety of meanings. Hw.t can mean "temple, citidel, administrative district (CdE No. 93-94, 29 ff.; ZAS 87, 86), and the plural can mean "royal domains" (RevEg 9, 14, n. 5). Hw.t <sup>c</sup>3.t can mean "palace (JEA 53, 6), temple, administrative center, law-court." Hw.t-ntr seems always to mean "temple," sometimes more specifically a royal funerary temple (RevEg 11, 58, n. 6; MDAIK 21, 10). The title hk<sup>c</sup> hw.t is sometimes rendered "mayor" (Bauer, p. 83; HP, p. 53, V 40). It is therefore possible that translations of some of the titles included here are inaccurate. Hence, imy-r hw.t 'Imn (no. 246), rendered here as "Overseer of the temple of Amon," might instead be "... of the estate of Amon." See further, AL I, p. 232.

Hnmw-s.wt, Most Favoured of Places, 653. Name of the pyramid of Senusert I; JEA 52, 176; Verwaltung, p. 247.

hkrw, (royal) insignia, 1186. This seems the most likely sense. The determinative was borrowed from terms like hkr.t (no. 1232) and Wb. III, 401, 6.

There is no reason to believe this means "kitchen" as frequently supposed, e.g., Mél. Masp. I, p. 557. For the meaning "storehouse," see KKS, Appendix B.

s3w, bread(?), 484. Reading after Martin, but this is uncertain. Mace, JEA 8, 15 (no. 18), reads s3w it, "Keeper of barley." OOE, p. 238, reads s3w iw, "Keeper of meat." Verwaltung, p. 256, suggests "bread" as the meaning.

šmsw, retainers' house, 10. Martin 476 reads the pr-sign as the beginning of the personal name, but CG 20019 makes this unlikely; the pr-sign is understood as a determinative by Wb. IV, 488, 1. The šmsw may be some part of the palace set aside for the use of Retainers.

gs-pr(w), administrative district, royal domain, 411-13, 419, 424, 1476a. In general, "administrative district is the better rendering of this term (Urk. There is no sure evidence that a temple is meant in any early occurrence of the term.
